

Device	Definition	Where is it?	Why did I use it?
Colloquial	The use of slang or informalities in speech or writing. Colloquial expressions in writing include local or regional dialects.	"You ready' eat soon, misteeer Tennant?"	Iles uses dialects to convey where people are from in his novels, especially in the novel I read. To express this, I used Andrew Fielding's wife to show that she is not from America, but rather from China.
Atmosphere	The emotional mood created by the entirety of a literary work, established partly by the setting and partly by the author's choice of objects that are described.	All throughout the mimic, I used very fast-paced comments and a very serious mood that made the atmosphere mimic what Iles used in The Footprints of God .	The atmosphere of The Footprints of God is very important in the theme of the novel. Since the issue is very serious, Iles made sure to keep the atmosphere serious. Regarding these facts, I decided to do the same, hoping to capture the atmosphere at the very beginning of the novel.
Stream of Consciousness	A literary style in which a character's thoughts, feelings, and reactions are depicted in a continuous flow uninterrupted by objective description or conventional dialogue.	Beginning with "As I look around" and ending with "but when will it begin."	I decided to use this rhetorical device because it is so prevalent in the novel. Since the main character has narcolepsy, there are multiple instances of these text breaks.
Flashback	Flashback is a literary device where the	Beginning with "Sitting at the table"	As well as stream of consciousness,
